3. Justification in the curriculum, relation to other subjects and to the profession

- The Informative documentation was always a necessary tool for the good professional exercise of journalism, but it has become indispensable today. Indeed, due to the explosion of new digital media and social networks, which often involve the proliferation of dubious sources and the so-called Fake News, journalists must compete for audiences and readers in the only true journalistic way, ensuring the rigor and the informative precision that only the good use of the Documentation provides.
- Thus, it is necessary to provide future journalists with the mastery of the basic tools for the efficient management of information, for the verification of facts and data and for the proper management of journalistic sources, as well as the theory and own techniques for the creation and management of information repositories that will serve them in their work.
- It is also necessary to provide guidelines for the selection and management of digital sources, RSS and other forms of content syndication, to improve the web positioning of their work.
- Equally, it is increasingly necessary that the knowledge of search techniques and the language of recovery that is applied on the internet is also involved in the creation of digital pieces and texts to ensure, through SEO, the visibility of the information we produce and through the metrics and analytics of networks to control their impact.
- The subject is directly related to subjects such as journalistic writing, production and realization, digital journalism, investigative journalism and precision
