3. Justification in the curriculum, relation to other subjects and to the profession

In globalized world, knowledge about international environment has become a requirement for those who operate in the economic reality. In this sense, this course tries to offer an overview of the features, problems and trends of International Economy. This seeks to understand how the world economy works in a context of continuous change, while analyzing the current problems facing international economic policy in its quest to improve the living standards of the population.

The study of the international economic environment is based on the economic models, addressed in the subjects of "Introduction to Economics" and "Intermediate Macroeconomics", trying to interpret the economic facts in the light of said theoretical models and the evolutionary dynamics provided by the subject "Economic History". Likewise, the study of the international economic reality, since requires the use of data processing techniques, is based on the contents of the "Business Statistics" subject.

This subject constitutes a frame of reference to face the study of the subject of "Spanish Economy", which the study plan places in the following year. It would be difficult to understand the economic problems of a country, the current trends in the markets or the framework in which its international relations are developed, without having a good knowledge of the conditioning factors and the opportunities offered by the world economy.

Lastly, it constitutes a starting point for the study of economic integration processes and specifically that carried out by European countries, which is dealt with in a much broader and more detailed way in the optional subject "Economy of the European Union".
